Exporting citations from SciFinder Web

To use SciFinder Web you need to create an account.

Once you have an account you need to log in.

Both of these links above can be accessed from the Databases page on the Library Website under SciFinder.
Type in your search terms and apply any limits and search
Select the references you would like to view by selecting the check boxes and click Get References
To export into Endnote – select the checkboxes next to the references you want and click Export.
Export format should be *.ris. As this is a direct export to Endnote don’t worry about the filename. Click Export and click the Open button on the next window. If your Endnote Library isn’t open you will need to select your Endnote Library and the export will then complete.
